

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

INTRODUCTION

THE White Mountains, covering roughly an area somewhat less than forty miles square in northern New Hampshire, with but nine mountains over five thousand feet in height and only one peak above six thousand, have had more written about them, probably, than any other mountains, the Alps alone excepted. The highest summit, patriotically named for President Washington during the first years of his administration, was the first mountain to be climbed in what is now the United States. This was accomplished by Darby Field, in 1642. The record of this first ascent was preserved by Governor John Winthrop in his journal, which, however, was not published until nearly a century and a half later.

The first mention of the White Mountains in print is in "New England's Rarities discovered in birds, beasts, fishes, serpents and plants of that country," by John Josselyn, Gent., published in London in 1672. Josselyn also refers incidentally to the "high Hills of Ossapy." Five years later the first printer and engraver in Boston, John Foster, made a crude map of New England, on which the name "White Hills" appeared. The names of the individual peaks did not appear in any book nor upon any map until 1784, when Holland's map appeared, bearing the names of Mooselock (Moosilauke), Moat, Royce, Mitten, and Rattlesnake. "Ossipa Mt." had appeared on Jefferys' map in 1774 and "Red Hill" on Pownall's map two years later, but these belong rather to the Lake country. The first pictures seem to have been the two small engravings, "The Gap of the White Mountains" and "View from Shelburne," in the upper portion of Philip Carrigain's map of New Hampshire, published in 1816.

As will be seen from the following pages two hundred and eighty-five books and pamphlets have had something to say about the White Mountains, and nearly three hundred magazine articles, one third of these in "Appalachia," the journal of the Appalachian Mountain Club, founded in 1876, the first year of the Club's existence. Furthermore there will be found recorded some one hundred and fifty poems, fifty newspapers that have at divers times been published in White Mountain towns, thirty-six maps, and an imperfect list of early engravings. The poets have been particularly attracted to Mt. Chocorua and the Old Man of the Mountain. Many of the greatest American writers — Longfellow, Whittier, Hawthorne, Parkman and Thoreau — have left their impressions in their individual ways, while Thomas Starr King in "The White Hills" produced not only a classic of mountain lore, but what may well be considered a classic of English literature.

The earliest of American landscape painters, Thomas Cole and Thomas Doughty, were not slow in finding out the beauties of the White Mountains, and they have had many followers. A catalogue of paintings in public places might prove interesting, although it would be painfully short. The Boston Museum of Fine Arts has none; the Corcoran Gallery in Washington has but one, John F. Kensett's "Sketch of Mt. Washington"; and the great Metropolitan Museum in New York has only one, Homer D. Martin's "Madison and Adams from Randolph Hill." The Lenox Library in New York does better, with five.

One field, newspaper articles, I have neglected entirely, although it contains much valuable matter. In the "New Hampshire Statesman and Concord Register" of September 9 and 16, 1826, is perhaps the earliest printed description of Franconia Notch and an ascent of Mt. Lafayette, or "Mt. Fayette" as the writer calls it. A few days earlier nearly all of the New England newspapers presented thrilling accounts of the terrible Willey house disaster. Starr King's first mountain articles, signed "T," appeared in the Boston Transcript in the summer of 1853, and the several chapters of Julius H. Ward's volume were written originally for the Boston Sunday Herald.

As for bibliographies, M. F. Sweetser, in his valuable "Hand-book to the White Mountains," first published in 1876, gives an interesting list of authorities consulted in the preparation of his book, and Mr. Ward, in his volume just referred to, itemized the articles that had been published in "Appalachia" up to that time (1890), together with a short list of books on the subject. In the "New England Magazine" for July, 1891, is an interesting illustrated article on the "Literature of the White Mountains," by William Howe Downes, and in the Second Annual Report of the New Hampshire Forest Commission, 1894, a bibliography of fifty-eight items. Finally, in the Monthly Bulletin of the Providence Public Library for September, 1895, there appeared what the compiler, Mr. George Thomas Hart, modestly calls "Materials suggested as the Nucleus of a Bibliography of the White Mountains," in reality a valuable classified list of fifteen quarto pages.

A bibliography is not unlike a cairn on a mountain top — a loose, disjointed affair, representing more hard work than beauty, and one never knows when it is completed. Its value consists in its suggestiveness and in serving as a guide for others. Toward the completion of the present work many a willing hand has contributed a stone, but Miss Mary A. Day of the Gray Herbarium, Mr. J. H. Emerton, and Mr. F. G. Floyd have done much more, and to them I am particularly grateful. If the follower on the same trail finds some loose stones that have been overlooked, it is hoped that he will forego the temptation to throw them, but rather add them as his contribution to the pile already constructed.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS

THE CLASSICS

THE HISTORY OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS FROM THE FIRST SETTLEMENT OF UPPER COOS AND PEQUAKET, by Lucy, Wife of Ethan Allen Crawford, Esq.

24mo, 204 pages. White Hills, 1846.

The book was printed in Portland, where it was reprinted in 1883, with introduction by Henry Wheelock Ripley, and again in 1886, with wood cuts, and poems by Mr. Ripley, Bethra Liedean, and C. E. Swinerton.

SCENERY OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS, by William Oakes, with 16 plates from drawings by Isaac Sprague.

Folio. Boston, 1848.

Two of the lithographs are from paintings by Godfrey N. Frankenstein, who was born in Germany, 1820, and died in Springfield, O., 1873.

The views of Profile Mt. and the Old Man of the Mountain, with description, appeared separately in 1847.

A portrait of Wm. Oakes, who was born in Danvers, Mass., 1799, and was drowned between Boston and East Boston, 1848, appears in the New England Magazine, March, 1896, and a sketch of his life in American Journal of Science and Arts, 2d series, Vol. 7, January, 1849, reprinted in Edinburgh New Philosophical Journal, Vol. 46, April, 1849. For Frankenstein, see the account of Springfield, in History of Clark County, Ohio, published in Chicago, 1881, and Studies in Literature by Gilderoy W. Griffin, Baltimore, 1870.

HISTORICAL RELICS OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS, ALSO, A CONCISE WHITE MOUNTAIN GUIDE, by John H. Spaulding.

16mo, 96 pages. Boston, 1855.

The 3d edition, Mt. Washington, 1858, has a list of plants of the alpine regions of the White Mountains, 3 pages, by Professors Clark and Tuckerman of Amherst.

Portrait and sketch of the author, born 1821, died 1893, in the History of Coos County, N. H., Syracuse, 1888; small portrait in Burt's Mount Washington Hand-book.

THREE DAYS ON THE WHITE MOUNTAINS: being the perilous adventure of Dr. B. L. Ball on Mount Washington, during Oct. 25, 26, and 27, 1855, written by himself.

12mo, 72 pages. Boston, 1856.

Reprinted in Boston, 1877.

Dr. Ball was born in Northboro, Mass., in 1820, and died in Chiriqui, Panama, in 1859.

INCIDENTS IN WHITE MOUNTAIN HISTORY, by [Rev.] Benjamin G. Willey.

12mo, 321 pages. Illustrated. Boston, 1856.

New edition with title, History of the White Mountains, with illustrations, revised and edited by Frederick Thompson, New York, 1870.

The author, born in Conway, N. H., 1796, died in East Sumner, Me., 1867, was a brother of Samuel Willey, Jr., who with his family was killed in the great slide of 1826.

THE WHITE HILLS; THEIR LEGENDS, LANDSCAPE, AND POETRY, by Thomas Starr King, with sixty illustrations, engraved by [John] Andrew, from drawings by [Merrill G.] Wheelock.

12mo, 403 pages. Boston, 1860 (1859).

Although written more than fifty years ago, this is still the best book about the White Mountains. Several editions. In 1887 it was re-issued by Estes and Lauriat of Boston, with the addition of eleven photogravures.

Prof. Edward Tuckerman, born in Boston in 1817, died in Amherst, Mass. in 1886, contributed chapters on the Exploration of the White Hills and Vegetation of the White Mountains. Tuckerman's portrait appears in the New England Magazine, March, 1896, and there is a notice of his life by Asa Gray in Proceedings of the American Academy, Vol. 21, 1886.

Starr King was born in N. Y. City in 1824, died in San Francisco in 1864. His portrait appears in a volume of his sermons, Christianity and Humanity, with memoir by E. P. Whipple, Boston, 1877, in the American Portrait Gallery, Vol. 1, 1877, in Representative and Leading Men of the Pacific, in H. S. Ballou's Life of Hosea Ballou, 2d, DD., Boston, 1896, in Ballou's Pictorial Magazine, Vol. 11, Aug. 9, 1856, in the Outlook, Vol. 58, March 5, 1898, in the New England Magazine, Vol. 22, May, 1900, and in Elbert Hubbard's Little Journeys to the Homes of Eminent Orators, 1903.

For memoirs of King see A Tribute to Thomas Starr King, by Richard Frothingham, 247 pages, Boston, 1865, The Character and Genius of Thomas Starr King, by E. P. Whipple, in Unitarian Review, Vol. 9, pp. 537-548, May, 1878, Reminiscences, by E. E. Hale, DD., in Unitarian Review, Vol. 29, April, 1888. See also Whittier's poem, Thomas Starr King, 17 lines.

MT. WASHINGTON IN WINTER, OR THE EXPERIENCES OF A SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITION UPON THE HIGHEST MOUNTAIN IN NEW ENGLAND, 1870-71.

12mo, 363 pages. Boston, 1871.

The book was written by Prof. Charles H. Hitchcock and J. H. Huntington, with chapters contributed by S. A. Nelson, A. F. Clough, Howard A. Kimball, and Thomas Smith, U. S. A.

Prof. Hitchcock was born in Amherst, Mass. in 1836, and is living (1910) in Honolulu. A sketch of his life, with portrait, will be found in the Popular Science Monthly, Vol. 54, December, 1898. Mr. Huntington was born in Bozrah, Conn., in 1833, and died in Baker City, Oregon, in 1904.

THE HEART OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS, THEIR LEGEND AND SCENERY, by Samuel Adams Drake, with illustrations by W. Hamilton Gibson.

Quarto, 318 pages. New York, 1881.

This volume gives the Indian Legends, Autumn Foliage in the Valley of the Saco, Winter Ascent of Mt. Kearsarge, as well as a general description.

Part of the description and pictures appeared in Harper's Magazine for June, July, and August, 1881.

Portrait of the author, who was born in Boston in 1833 and died in Kennebunkport, Me., in 1905, in the New England Magazine, Vol. 4, August, 1891.

THE WHITE MOUNTAINS: A GUIDE TO THEIR INTERPRETATION, by Julius H. Ward.

16mo, 258 pages. Map and Illustrations. New York, 1890.

Appeared originally in the Boston Sunday Herald, of which Mr. Ward was an editorial writer.

New edition with four additional chapters, including The Mountain Colors and Snowshoeing on Osceola, 311 pages. Boston, 1896.

ARTICLES IN APPALACHIA

APPALACHIA, the journal of the Appalachian Mountain Club, was established immediately after the founding of the Society, in January, 1876. The first number appeared in June of that year. The form and character of the magazine were determined by its editor, Samuel H. Scudder, the Club's first vice-president. Since 1878 the editorship has been conducted by Charles E. Fay.

See also reports of Councillors, particularly Improvements, and, in the first six volumes, Exploration, and beginning with Vol. 8 reports of Trustees of Real Estate. Since November, 1907, a Bulletin of the A. M. C. has been issued ten months in the year.

POETRY

The Village, a long poem written in and of Fryeburg, by Enoch Lincoln, and published in Portland, in 1816, although referring to the mountains in a general way, is hardly a White Mountain poem, nor is Longfellow's Jeckoyva (35 lines), first published in the United States Literary Gazette, Vol. 2, p. 348, August 1, 1825. If the letter u is substituted for the letter v, the name Jeckoyva becomes in pronunciation very nearly Chocorus, and it is the Chocorus legend that inspired the poem.

MAPS

Mountains where the White Mts. are located appear on many early maps (see Osgood's or Ticknor's Handbook of the White Mts. by M. F. Sweetser), but no specific name is given to them on any map until 1677, when the map of New England, engraved by John Foster, the first printer and engraver in Boston, appeared in Rev. William Hubbard's Narrative of the Troubles with the Indians in New England. The name Wine Hills on the first impression was clearly a misprint and the map was re-cut the same year and the name White Hills substituted. The London edition of the book the same year had the corrected map. The volume is extremely rare. The Wine Hills map has been reprinted in recent years. Notes on the map by Charles Deane and Dr. Samuel A. Green appear in the Proceedings of the Mass. Historical Soc., Second Series, Vol. 4, 1889.

The White Hills are named on Thomas Jefferys' Map of the Northern Part of New England, first published in 1755 in London; on Blanchard and Langdon's Map of New Hampshire, engraved by Thomas Jefferys in 1761; and on A New and Correct Map of New England, New York, and Canada, by J. Gibson, in The American Gazetteer, Vol. 2, London, 1762. An edition of the Jefferys map in 1774 named in addition Ossipa Mt. and Pigwacket Hills. A Map of the Middle British Colonies in North America by T. Pownall, M. P., London, 1776, gives the name of Red Hill.

A TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, surveyed under the direction of Samuel Holland, printed by William Faden. London, 1784.

Presidential Range called The White Hills. Only peaks named are Moat, Royce, Mooselock, and Millen Hill (Mitten Mt.). In the Lake country are Red Hill and Ossipee Mts., given on earlier maps, Rattlesnake Mt. and Mt. Major.

A NEW MAP OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, by Jeremy Belknap, in his History of New Hampshire, Vol. 2. Boston, 1791.

The Presidential Range is called White Mountain. In addition to the summits named on Holland's map are Kyarsarge, Chocorua, Doublehead, Sloop, Crotch (now Thorn), East (now Wildcat), and Pondicherry (now Cherry). This is the first map on which The Notch appears by name.

MAP OF THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, by Samuel Lewis, in Carey's General Atlas. Philadelphia, 1794.

Follows Belknap and gives nothing new.

MAP OF THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, engraved by B. Tanner, in The American Atlas, published by John Reid. New York, 1796.

Names of eight summits given, but nothing new. Reproduced for the U. S. Government in the reprint of the First Census, 1907.

MAP OF NEW HAMPSHIRE AND VERMONT, by J. Dennison, in third edition of American Universal Geography, by Jedidiah Morse. Boston, 1796.

Map follows Belknap and gives nothing new in White Mt. region.

MAP OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, by Philip Carrigain. Concord, N. H., 1816.

Presidential Range called The White Mts., Lafayette called Great Haystack Mt., Moosilauke called Moosehillock, Kearsarge called Pigwacket, Chocorua called Corway-Peak Mt., and Thorn by its present name. In addition to the preceding, and Doublehead, Royse, Pondicherry, Red Hill, and Ossipee Mt. named on earlier maps, the following appear by name for the first time : Moriah, Eastman, Sable, Black (in Jackson), Black (in Randolph), Pliny, Willards (in Kilkenny), Picket Mt. (in Bethlehem), Kinsmans, Black (south of Kinsmans), Blue Mt. (south of Black), Carr's Mt., Cushman's Mt., Landaff Mt., Owl's Head Mt., Stinson's Mt., Crotched Mt. (in Campton), North Mt. (in Campton), Sandwich Mts., Whiteface Mt., Squam Mt. In the corners are pictures of The Gap of the White Mts. and the View from Shelburne. These are the first engravings of White Mt. scenes.

MAP OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS, drawn by Franklin Leavitt, guide. Boston, 1852.

While this is the first map of the White Mts., it is more of a curiosity than a real map. The names of Mounts Imp, Carter, Hayes, Willard, Willey, and Crawford appear for the first time on any map. Profile Mt. is called Mt. Lafayette. In 1859 a revised edition appeared with illustrations. There were pictures of two hotels on the first edition.

MAP OF THE MOUNTAIN AND LAKE REGIONS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE WITH RAIL-ROAD ROUTES, by M. Conant, Engineer of the Cochecho R. R. (the railroad from Dover to Alton Bay). 1852.

Cannon Mt. is called Old Man's Mt.

A MAP OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE [by George P. Bond]. 1853.

The names of the individual peaks of the Presidential Range appear for the first time on any map, as well as the names Cannon Mt., Twin Mts., Carrigain, Tremont, and Giant's Stairs. On the reverse are five lithographs from drawings by Ben Champney.

MAP OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS, by Harvey Boardman. Published separately and in his Guide to the White Mts. Boston, 1858.

The map has pictures. New edition, revised by H. S. Fifield, published in 1871.

MAP OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS, with Arnold Guyot's On the Appalachian Mt. System. American Journal of Science and Arts, March, 1860.

It was taken from Bond's map. Engraved in Germany and published in Petermann's Mittheilungen, Gotha, 1860.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF GRAFTON COUNTY, NEW HAMPSHIRE, from actual surveys by H. F. Walling. Published by Smith, Mason & Co. New York, 1860.
